Born in southern Indiana, John Reynolds started drawing and painting at an early age. After high school he moved to Muncie, Indiana to attend Ball State University College of Architecture and Planning and graduated with a degree in Architecture in 1973. He continued his art studies and teaching at the Indianapolis Art Center, and with noted American impressionist C. W. Mundy, and traveled to New York City, Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona to study with nationally known painters such as Kevin McPherson, Jacob Collins, Matt Smith, Greg Kreutz, Richard Whitney, Morgan Price, Brian Stewart, Marlin Linville and others.

"I am primarily a realist painter; however, I try to incorporate all I have gleaned from studying past and present masters, to realistically represent my subject with the best impression possible, as interpreted thru my eyes. I have drawn the human form from life, for more than 1000 hours. I feel this is the best training possible for any artist to learn to see and draw."

"Transcending one's self while painting is a humbling experience that I wish for more often."
